

Speak out against the powers of the ABCC

Defend Noel Washington
More details on the back

Friday October 31st

Speeches begin at 12.15

Outside the ABCC offices at 250 St George Terrace

Speakers include construction union officials, community and civil rights groups

Organised by Community Solidarity

For more info call Dave on 0410 410 592

Or email wasolidarity@yahoo.com.au

“The laws they have at their disposal have no place in a so called democratic society like Australia and they use those laws freely to go after ordinary workers.”

Noel Washington

Noel Washington is under threat of going to prison because he will not go before a commission where he loses:

His right to not answer questions
His right to choose his lawyer
His right to discuss what happened

Noel along with over 50 other Australian construction workers have been called to speak to the ABCC. The ABCC has powers unimaginable to most police offices including the right to force people to answer questions.

All workers who have been called in front of this Commission have been asked details of conversations and meetings with other workers. Noel is refusing to give information about a meeting of workers after work hours. He is refusing give this information to this commission as it violates the basic human rights of the people who are interrogated by it. For this he faces six months in Prison.

For more information visit www.unionsolidarity.org

www.rightonsite.org.au